MODULE-II

Digital Literacy and Liberal Art

This course on Digital Literacy and Liberal Arts seeks to equip students with the competencies (knowledge, skills and attitudes) in the use of digital technology needed to access learning opportunities, pursue their chosen careers particularly as programmers or web-developer and interests to contribute to society as active citizens.

Course Outcome

The course seeks to provide to the students a critical understanding of the implications of digital technology for individuals and society at a large. Good digital literacy practice will contribute towards students' effective engagement in learning environments. These skills also impact students' employability, with recruitment being increasingly undertaken via social media and a professional digital identity being key to future networking within a profession, seeking opportunities and ensuring mobility over a career.

i) Digital literacy and Self Development

ii) Digital identity and Well-being

Analytic Philosophy and Early Wittgensteinian Thought

I do not think that any of the things I have said in this paper are particularly important. I am only trying to suggest that the things I have said are not particularly important. I am only trying to suggest that the things I have said are not particularly important.

1. History of Indian Philosophy:

Characteristic features of Indian Philosophy:

Philosophy and Darsana,

The history of Indian philosophy is characterized by its continuity and its synthesis of the spiritual and the material. The philosophy of the Vedas and the Upanishads is the foundation of Indian thought. The six schools of Indian philosophy are the Nyaya, Vaisheshika, Mimamsa, Sankhya, Yoga, and Jainism. The Buddhist and Jain philosophies are also important parts of Indian thought.

PHIPCOR18M

(PROJECT/DISSERTATION)

Students have to write one dissertation on any topic related with the core courses offered by the department. A supervisor will be assigned to each student under whose guidance she/he will write her/his dissertation.

For the dissertation paper, 70 marks will be allotted to written and rest 30 for viva-voce. Written projects will be evaluated by the Internal Supervisors and the external subject experts will evaluate in the form of viva-voce out of 30 marks. Each dissertation paper should be written within 6000 words.
